The Logic Seminar

Originally written by the great hymnwriter, Isaac Watts in 1724, Logic helps guide young people in clear thinking and exercising their senses to discern between good and evil. Presented by Daniel Valles, this seminar is almost four hours long, covering many of the highlights from the book.

Divided into over forty short lessons (on average 5 minutes long), the Seminar presents Logic in plain English, while also presenting the sense and depth that Isaac Watts intended.

Watts wrote his book from a Christian perspective, and used many verses and Bible references to help the reader realize the importance of clear thinking, not just in everyday life, but also in our reading and interpreting the Scriptures.

Reviewed by The Old Schoolhouse Magazine!

“Sometimes a review just writes itself. The product is of exceptional quality or does such an excellent job that I don't have to try to pull the best things from it to communicate in my review. Logic is such a product. Daniel Valles has taken hymnwriter Isaac Watts's classic textbook on logic, written in 1724, and turned its lessons into a multimedia presentation that engages the student and communicates the book's lessons in a timeless way...”

Testimonials

"...We were on lesson 38 before John watched the part that you filmed on the why and how of doing the video. It was a great testimony to teens. I wish that we had watched this before we started the course. I also wished that I could show it to our teen group as a testimony to how God leads in our lives. As strange as it seems I was glad when we finished the logic lesson but I missed the 1776 period of the video and I longed for more..." -D.V.

"I'm enjoying the seminar and my mom can't wait to use it with homeschooling my younger siblings!" - H.J.

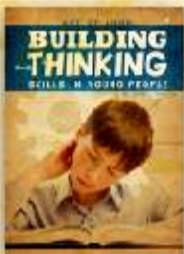

"We are really enjoying the course, it is quite challenging." - S.C.
